UC Merced opened September 5, 2005, as the 10th campus in the University of California system and the first American research university of the 21st century. The campus significantly expands access to the UC system for students throughout the state, with a special mission to increase college-going rates among students in the San Joaquin Valley. It also serves as a major base of advanced research and as a stimulus to economic growth and diversification throughout the region. Situated near Yosemite National Park, the university is expected to grow rapidly, topping out at about 25,000 students within 30 years.

Student Research & Academic Excellence

The undergraduate experience at UC Merced includes abundant opportunities to interact with world-class faculty and graduate students involved in research in nearly any discipline. The advantage to students who are interested in pursuing graduate or professional school education is extraordinary. Consider the value of classroom experiences that include graduate student participation (as many upper-division courses do) or the numerous opportunities for undergraduates to actively take part in ground-breaking research.

Undergraduate Research Opportunities

Examples of UC Merced undergraduate research programs:
Natural Resources/Ecosystems: Students can study the effects of population growth, air quality, fire ecology, resource management and policy, biodiversity and climate change in the nearby Sierra Nevada mountains.
Cultural impacts: Students can study evolving and competing images of California, agriculture and society, and the role of economics, religion, and the arts in the formation of the individual and societal local, regional and national identities.
Health Sciences: Students can study how human health links with the health of the environment in such areas as stem cell biology, infectious disease and bioengineering.

Graduate Education

UC Merced is building a world-class faculty and partnerships with Yosemite National Park, Sequoia/Kings Canyon National Parks and Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory.

Providing students with innovative projects and hands-on experience are central themes in the approach to learning at UC Merced. Students are invited to explore emerging areas of knowledge and have unparalleled access to UC Merced's distinguished faculty and state-of-the-art facilities.

Library Resources

The UC Merced Library provides access to 21,000 online journals, 300 databases and 150,000 e-books. The library has an on-site collection of 65,000 books supplemented by ready access to the entire University of California collection of approximately 36 million volumes. Some 250 laptop computers are available for checkout in the library and there is wireless connectivity throughout the Library building.

Research Centers & Institutes

SNRI experts in the natural sciences, engineering and policy sciences work together to address resource-related questions for the Sierra Nevada and the Central Valley of California, exploring fields like hydrology, fire science, ecology and climate change.

Energy Research Institute

Rising energy prices and the impact of fossil fuels on the environment are driving increased research of renewable energy supply systems. UC Merced is developing novel solutions for a reliable, cost-competitive and environmentally friendly energy system. As part of an international community of energy experts, UC Merced is positioned to develop new technologies that challenge the status quo of the current energy economic system.

Center for Computational Biology

The Center for Computational Biology (CCB) is a new research and education center at UC Merced. The center sponsors multidisciplinary scientific projects in which biological understanding is guided by computational modeling. The center also facilitates the development and dissemination of undergraduate and graduate course materials based on the latest research in computational biology.

Student Experiences & Perceptions

Students who are actively involved in their own learning and development are more likely to be successful in college. Colleges and universities offer students a wide variety of opportunities both inside and outside the classroom to become engaged with new ideas, people, and experiences. Institutions measure the effectiveness of these opportunities in a variety of ways to better understand what types of activities and programs students find the most helpful.

The following are selected responses from the 2007-08 University of California Undergraduate Experience Survey (UCUES). The questions have been grouped together in categories that are known to contribute to student learning and development. The results reported below are based on the responses of UC Merced juniors who participated in the survey.

Satisfaction percentages are a combination of "very satisfied", "satisfied" and "somewhat satisfied" student responses. Student experience percentages are a combination of "very often", "often", "somewhat often" and "occassionally" responses. Students with a "rarely" response are excluded.

Learning Outcomes

The University of California's Academic Planning Council has approved a Spring 2008 recommendation made by the Undergraduate Education Planning Group to create two task forces charged with identifying learning outcome measures that are appropriate for research university undergraduates. The Undergraduate Educational Effectiveness Task Force will advise UC campuses about assessment measures, measurement processes, and communication of assessment results. The Postgraduate Outcomes Task Force will recommend a method for identifying and evaluating the impacts of a UC undergraduate education after students graduate. Both task forces will help guide UC Merced in the assessment of the campus' learning goals for undergraduates and help us obtain comparative benchmark data from our sister UC campuses. Measures identified by these task forces, which include members of the UC Academic Senate, will be included in future generations of this UC Merced Profile.
